I've been designing unobtrusive, intuitive interfaces for over 15 years.

Throughout my career, I've worked with early stage startups through to acquisition, creative agencies, print publishers, B2B, B2C and an enterprise SaaS as a generalist product designer. I've hired, managed and mentored many amazing designers.

Working within the global teams at ClearScore & Havas, I've collaborated with people in over 25 countries (visiting many), I believe this has helped bring more empathy and cultural awareness to my work.

As part of the international team, I helped tailor the app for users in India. This involved user testing sessions in Mumbai as we optimised our registration journey, among other projects.

Earlier this year we launched in Australia, we spent time in the market (Sydney) to meet with key partners, domain experts and potential users. My last few months have been working with a newly formed open banking team to bring up-to-date data to lenders to help unlock new offers for our users.

Head of Product Design, Havas

During my time at Havas, I led a mobile-first product team working on responsive websites, native apps and interactive ads.

I ran design workshops with teams around the world, from Dubai to New York with clients ranging from Nike to Disney.
